COLORADO SPRINGS LAUNCHES APP

Partnership to roll out contactless mobile ticketing | May 10, 2022

Colorado Springs Mountain Metropolitan Transit (MMT) has partnered with Masabi to launch RideMMT, a contactless mobile ticketing application through which travelers can access a wide range of transit passes, cash-free – including single ride, one day, 31-day, and 20-ride tickets. Riders can use RideMMT on all 27 MMT routes throughout downtown Colorado Springs, Colorado, as well as to travel to some of the surrounding areas within and outside the city. Through this app, travelers have the option to efficiently buy, download, and display trip tickets via smartphone whenever needed.

INDYGO CONNECT PILOT TAKES OFF

Partnership with Via for on-demand microtransit service | May 11, 2022

IndyGo (the Indianapolis Public Transportation Corporation) has teamed up with Via to pilot a new on-demand transit service, IndyGo Connect, in Southeast Indianapolis, Indiana. As of May 11, travelers can book shared rides using this service for $1.75 or less per trip – with rides for seniors and children costing only $0.85. Travelers can reserve riders by phone or using the IndyGo Connect app, after which they will be assigned a virtual bus stop for pick up and drop off. Powered by Via, IndyGo Connect is intended to make it easier for locals to connect with existing transit and promote equitable mobility.
